FOREWARD

Founded in the Fall of 1998, the Richmond Journal of Global Law and Business functions as the student complement to the Center for Global Law and Business at the University of Richmond School of Law. The goal of the Journal is to provide scholarly insight into major legal and business issues affecting our global economy.

The Richmond Journal of Global Law and Business is essentially an 'electronic' publication, produced biannually in an online format. Given the fact that the Internet has permeated every facet of corporate life, the Editorial Board considered the Internet to be an appropriate medium for the Journal. Our web page is located at www.student.richmond.edu/~rjglb.

On April 16, 1999, the Journal sponsored its first event, an online symposium that featured a discussion regarding a recent development in international arbitration. The Editorial Board would like to thank the following persons for participating in the symposium: Yasuhei Taniguchi, Christopher Drahozal, Richard Hulbert, Richard Johnston, Robert Layton, and Tibor Varady. A transcribed copy of the symposium, entitled "Grounding the FAA: Judicial Review of International Arbitration," may be found on the Journal's web page.

In addition, the Editorial Board would like to thank Bernhard Grossfeld, J. Alfred Broadus, Jr., J. Richard Duke, and Wenyan Ma for contributing to this issue. We also owe a great deal of gratitude to our faculty advisors, Professors Leslie Kelleher and Daniel Murphy. Their support has enabled the Journal to prosper.
